ANTHONY HONG

👤 PROFILE

I have finished my studies in the web and UX design area in 2020 but before I dived into this industry, I was a private tutor teaching several students while also freelancing as a graphics designer in previous years. I have completed several projects from logo designs to brochures and menus through a variety of clients and have also being exposed to a variety of fields from architecture, business, cooking, construction, hospitality, agriculture and education to gain an awareness of how things work around these individual industries. This exploration has helped me hugely understand what each enterprise needs and can visually present them through my designs.

I am the type of person that can take on any challenges. I have an open mind to accept any new ideas or trends that may benefit companies for future growth. Working in unknown territories and coming out of my comfort zone has allowed me to become adaptive in learning new softwares or handling chaning circumstances in business operations.
